Finger Lakes Wired is set to receive $31,000 for two local projects that will connect business leaders in the nine-county region and help find solutions to business problems.

The Essential Links program will receive $20,000. Supported by the Cornell Agriculture and Food Technology Park in Geneva, the initiative aims to connect business leaders by creating a collaborative network for the food, beverage and agricultural industries.

The Finger Lakes Advanced Manufacturing Enterprise will get $11,000. The group is a partnership of manufacturers and the Finger Lakes Workforce Investment Board. Their primary goals are to increase development by supporting the active networks of business leaders in the region and providing increased information and opportunities for youth on careers in manufacturing.

"We are pleased to be able to support these projects, which will increase information sharing, lead to development of new opportunities and encourage cross-industry learning among business leaders in the region, particularly in target industries where we believe there is great potential for growth," said Matthew Hurlbutt, Finger Lakes Wired's managing director, in a statement.
